The Bomber Command Digital Archive is an initiative of the International Bomber Command Centre (IBCC). The Lincolnshire Bomber Command Memorial Trust (Registered Charity No. 1144182) and the University of Lincoln are partners in bringing the IBCC to life.

How to get there:

- At the Riseholme roundabout on the A46 (a) take the A15 direction North.
- After about one mile, turn right following the sign for University of Lincoln - Riseholme Campus (b). Ignore the turning for Lawress Hall.
- Use the Visitor Carpark. If it is full, use the overspill car park – please park on the verges of the lane, under the trees.
- Ignore the sign Reception on building 4 (as that facility belongs to another organisation) and enter directly either into the main offices at Riseholme Hall (building 1, marked out in red on the map) or into the Conference Centre (building 3).

Some tips for your visit:

- Visitors must be aware that Riseholme Campus is a facility shared with other organisations which can have different security protocols and access policies. You are kindly requested to speak to a member of staff and arrange your visit in advance.
